

Dear Colleagues,

We hope this message finds you well.

As announced during our past meetings and our recent Annual Conference, the Secretariat has been working on an interactive tool to showcase the achievements of the NPA projects in a new, easy, and enjoyable fashion.

We are therefore happy to invite you to visit the NPA Online Map of Results and discover the achievements of the NPA projects!

The map features individual stories from people who have worked in NPA projects, or who have directly benefitted from an NPA project. Each story is anchored to a location, thus highlighting what our regions have in common and how they can concretely support each other, thanks to transnational cooperation.

After the series of printed Maps of Results, which presented 3-4 successful stories from each NPA region, we are now proud to launch its online counterpart with almost a 100 stories from all across the 9 NPA partner countries!

How to use the map

You will find the online map here: <http://www.interreg-npa.eu/projects/online-map/>

To discover the stories, you can decide to select one specific region on the map, or simply zoom in. The tiles appearing next to the map correspond to the dots showing on the chosen map area. The map is regularly updated with new stories from each finalised project.

Each story is accompanied by unique pictures, an overview linking to the key products & services developed by the project, a testimonial and often, a short video.

Each story can be shared via Facebook or Twitter. So far we have used the hashtag #DiscoverNPA to share the project achievements. You are welcome to use the same hashtag, as it will help visitors to navigate across several stories.

The Online Map of Results was officially launched at the NPA Annual Conference on 23rd September 2020 with a short video.

We have designed this map to be a useful tool to show how NPA projects can make a difference to the communities in the Northern Periphery and Arctic. We hope that you can use it in your work when discussing the programme.

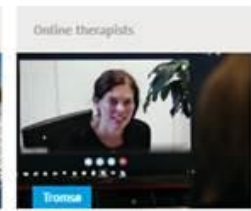

But most of all, we hope you will enjoy reading the stories, and we look forward to your comments and suggestions.

Thank you
